Comment on course strengths and/or weaknesses:

Comments
I learned a lot
It was pretty good
Maybe if college wasn't so expensive and everything wasn't so rushed (in order to graduate in four years) I could spend more time learning and practicing the material to actually gain knowledge instead of just learning it for the test and forgetting about it.
I think it was important to make sure to understand the material before hand to be sure you are ready for class.

Comment on instructor strengths and/or weaknesses: (Jacob Townson)

Comments
He was helpful
Enthusiastic and encouraged participation in discussion to improve student understanding. Overall a great recitation leader.

Good Guy
Jacob was THE BEST Teacher's Assistant I've had in my college career. Either he's really into calculus and loves sharing his knowledge or he loves teaching. If anything Jacob could employ strategies to get the class more involved such as incentivizing a quick recall or jeopardy game i.e. top performers get 2 extra points on a quiz. This in addition to calling class members up to the board to complete less complex problems would ensure students are prepared, have demonstrated knowledge of the material, and allow Jacob to catch and correct mistakes more quickly. All in all he's an excellent recitation leader and will come highly recommended if I encounter anyone needing to take MATH 180.
Jacob was a very sweet guy who respected his students. He always wore nerdy shirts that were great and was very helpful going over topics that were presented in class.
I really liked Jacob Townson because he was relatable and always had a positive attitude when we would come into recitation. Also he would explain well to the class how to do certain problems
TA was awesome and is the only reason I learned any calculus.
